3.1 Spanish Exploration of Texas

4th Grade Social Studies · Video: Spanish Exploration and Texas (Travis Copus)

Name: _____ Date: _____

Watch the video and fill in the blanks as you go.

Columbus and the Age of Exploration

Christopher Columbus sailed from Spain in _____ and landed on an island in the Caribbean.

His arrival started the _____ of goods and animals between Europe (the Old World) and the Americas (the New World).

Many _____ also came over from Europe and killed many Native people.

Columbus thought he had reached India.

His voyage started a golden age of _____ for Spain, France, England, Portugal, and other European countries.

Pineda Maps the Coast

In 1519, the Spaniard _____ sailed the Gulf of Mexico.

Pineda _____ the coastline of Texas.

He is often called the first European to see the land that would one day be called Texas.

Cabeza de Vaca and Estevanico

In 1528, a Spanish expedition set out for Texas from _____.

On November 6, 1528, the expedition was _____ on an island near present-day Galveston.

One survivor was _____.

Another survivor was _____, an enslaved man from Africa. He was the first African known to travel across Texas.

In the end, only _____ of the shipwrecked men survived.

Native Americans helped them at first. Later, the four men were held as slaves.

The four men became known for their _____ skills, so they were allowed to go free and trade with other tribes.

Over several years, they walked across Texas and northern Mexico and finally reached _____.

Cabeza de Vaca wrote a book called _____. It was the first detailed written record of Native American life in Texas.

Coronado and the Cities of Gold

Stories about riches led Spain to send the explorer _____ north.

Coronado searched for the Seven Cities of _____, cities that were supposed to be made of gold.

Cíbola was really a Native American pueblo, and Coronado found no gold there.

A guide told Coronado about a richer city to the north called _____.

Quivira, in present-day Kansas, was only a village of grass huts.

Some of Coronado's men became the first Europeans to see the _____.

After the explorers, Spain sent _____ to Texas to teach Native Americans the Catholic faith.

Vocabulary

Word	Meaning
expedition	a long trip made by a group of people for a special purpose
explorer	a person who travels to learn about new places
pueblo	a Native American town with buildings made of stone or adobe
missionary	a person sent to teach others about a religion

Key Takeaways

• Columbus's 1492 voyage started an age of exploration and the Columbian Exchange.

• Cabeza de Vaca and Estevanico crossed Texas after a shipwreck, and Cabeza de Vaca wrote about the Native Americans they met.

- Coronado searched for cities of gold but found none.